in Havana, on Feb. 17, 2006. The Cuban team will travel to Puerto Rico for the first phase of the World Cup which started on March 3, and for the first time will include professional players from leagues.

Possible Cuban defection hang over world baseball

from the Olympic champs, stung by high-profile departures in the past, including those of Orlando
"El Duque" Hernandez and Jose Contreras.

But history and the very presence of the Cuban team in Puerto Rico this week keeps the door open to defections from the communist-ruled island. The worst mass defection came in 1993 in Puerto Rico, during the Central American and Caribbean Games, when 39 athletes and trainers jumped ship.

"We will give all the support to anyone (who defects)," said Miguel Angel Martinez, president of the local chapter of the Cuban American National Foundation, a leading Cuba exile group. "We will support them legally and in every facet."

Participation in the inaugural World Baseball Classic, which brings together national squads from 16 leading baseball countries, is a risky road trip for Cuba, which has suffered a constant drain of sports talent from defections.

Major League baseball scouts will be watching the Cuban national team closely, hoping to lure top players with million-dollar contracts.

The Cubans will take to the same big forehands.

But the 12th seeded Blake quickly turned things around in the second set, serving with more authority, returning better and delivering some huge forehands of his own.

"Sam played unbelievable in the first set," the 26-year-old Blake said. "He was serving big and I don't think he missed too many forehands. His backhand was more solid than I'd expected after practicing with him a lot in December.

"But I'm happy I did a good job of not getting down on myself and not panicking."

Blake will face the winner of Tommy Robredo and Kenneth Carlsen.

Donald seals second PGA Tour

MIAMI (Reuters) — Britain's Luke Donald held his nerve to clinch a second PGA Tour title with a two-shot victory in the Honda Classic at Palm Beach Gardens, Florida on Sunday.

The 28-year-old Englishman birdied the last after striking a superb five-iron approach to just four feet, closing with a three-under-par 69 on the Sunrise Course at the Country Club at Mirasol.

Despite struggling with his putter for much of a blustery day, Donald was in prime form from

Tour.

Six-times major champion Faldo clinched nine titles and Jacklin four.

"It's nice to be back in the winner's circle on this tour again after a four-year break," Donald added, referring to his breakthrough triumph at the 2002 Southern Farm Bureau Classic.

"I'm very excited right now. I was pretty proud of the way I finished today, and finished the job off.

"There were a lot of emotions in hitting a poor wedge after a perfect drive being a five-footer to save

American Jeff Gove the PGA Tour this season after a three-year absence, with Donald after making on six and nine.

Gove held the out when Donald bogged horseshoeing out with from just three feet.

But Gove bogeyed the 13th after missing the his approach and dropped
